

SOUTHERNER

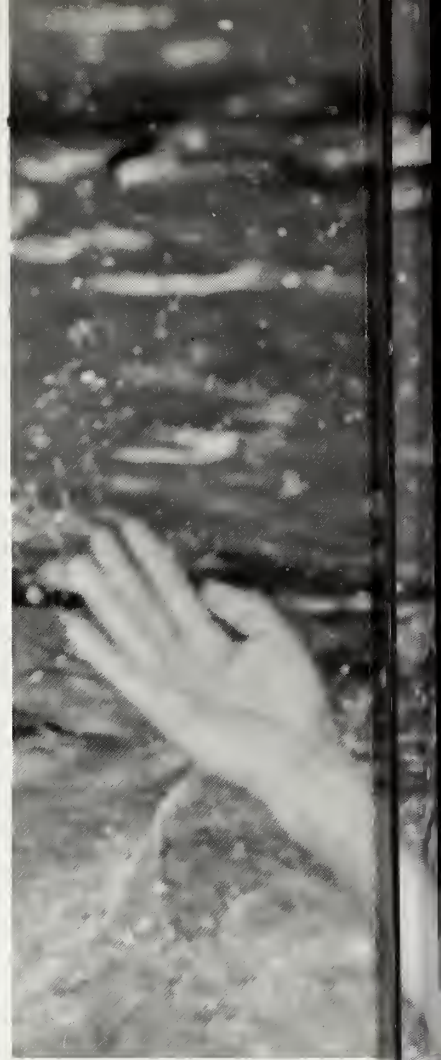

Sometimes we feel that our selfhood is being encroached upon by ... (others), as a candle might feel that its self is being denied when a fluorescent light is turned on ... Most of us are not candles in the wind, alone against the darkness; we are burning in the company of greater lights. You are the light of the world, too, but no one notices. It's all right. It's better to light your candle than to curse the light ... Recognize the distinctive nature of your own special light. God has made you unique, and the time will come, soon enough, when the master of the house will set you on his table to burn alone in the festive darkness. In the meantime, relax and shine. Participate in the general glory of light, rejoice in amazement at the fusion of lights, and be conscious always that you have been made unique. ©

With each day come new experiences and opportunities to brighten our lights.

Each of us must take advantage of these opportunities, even though they may cause our lights to dim or flicker.

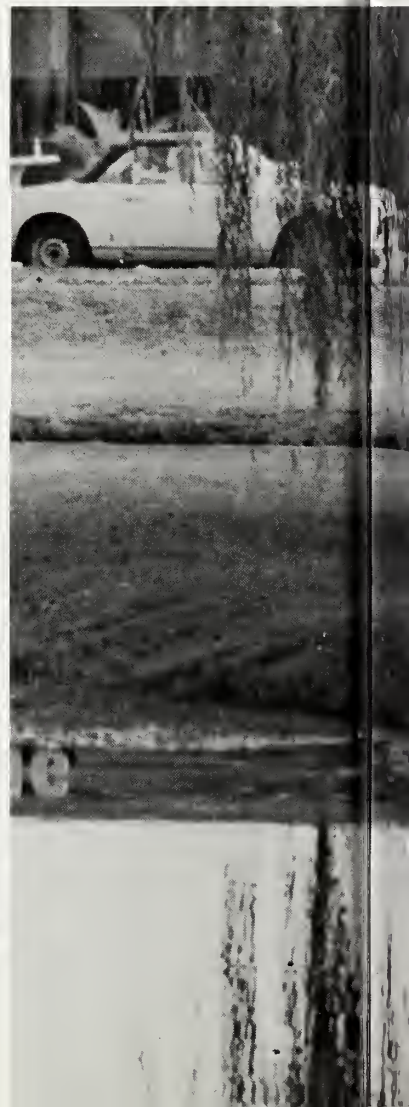

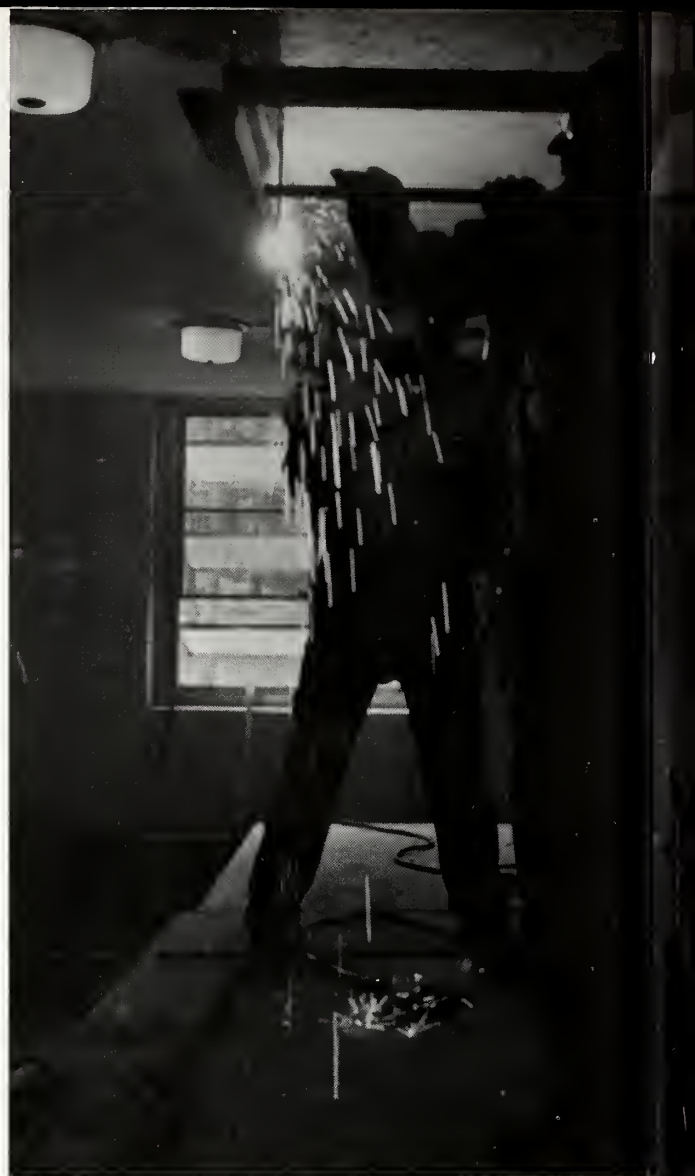

New lights appear around us as old ones fade away.

Those that linger become dearer and brighter with the passage of time.

Southern offers many opportunities for individuals to shine;

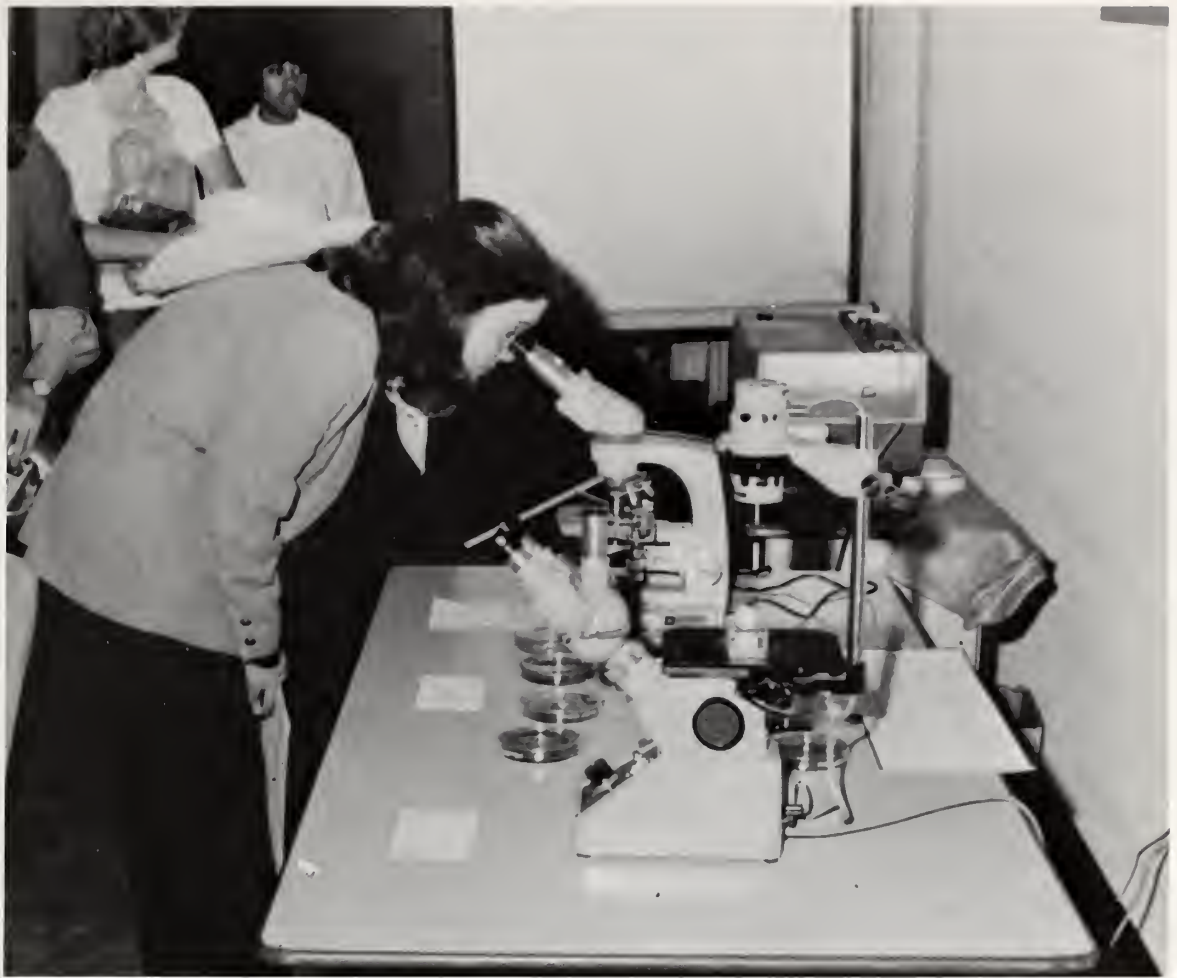

To face trials with victories and failures alike.

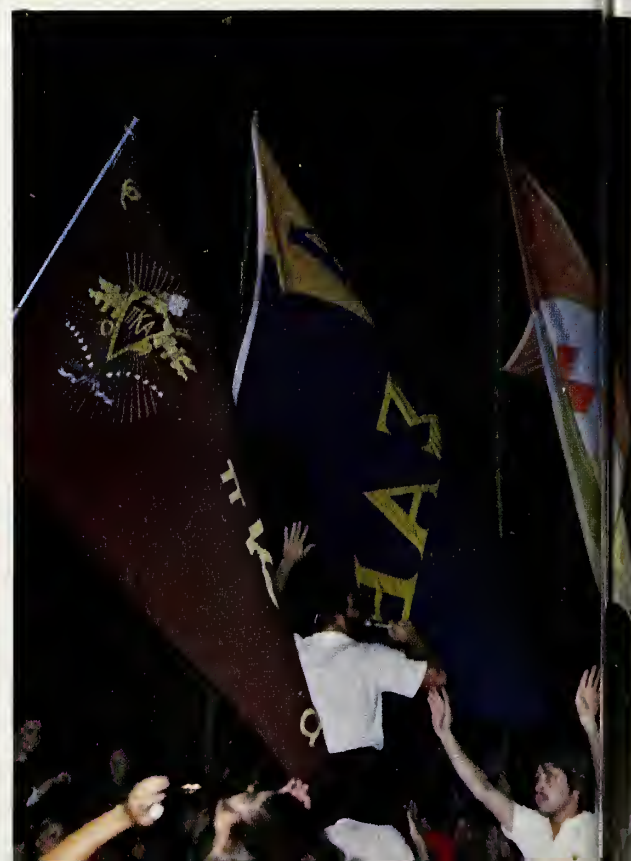

With experience comes maturity and the ability to handle responsibility, as well as the knowledge that we are as God has created us and in that, we are individuals with our own needs, personalities, and goals.

Friends are made to complement each other without extinguishing individual lights.

Alone we may not be able to light our own way,

but together we can light the world!

College Life

A university is a world all in its own and should be recognized as such. It offers a place to live, eat, work, learn and relax. The college years are a transition period for most students. Students are sliding out from under the protective wing of their families and moving into the harsh world of business and making a living. Although college should prepare students for this working world, it acts as a lingering time of childhood for many. Unprotected by families, they cut loose and do all the "living" they possibly can before settling down. College life is different from any other period in a person's life and students should take advantage of it.

Activities

Interested students can find enough activities on campus to keep them busy all day, every day. There are organizations for people interested in anything from rugby to religion. There are social groups, service groups, and groups that are just there. Most departments have organizations for students within the department. There are also performing groups open to students such as the "PRIDE" or Southern Style.

The University Activities Council brings concerts to the University each quarter with such top names as Gino Vannelli, Stephen Stills, Charlie Pride and Steve Martin. Besides concerts, the UAC provides movies for the students which are shown on Friday nights. The movies vary in type, but are usually interesting to most students.

For the sports lover, football, soccer, basketball, baseball, and other sports offer a chance to get involved either as a participant or a spectator. The Intramural program offers the athletically inclined person a chance to get involved in such sports as flag football, basketball, and water polo.

For those students interested in politics, there is the Associated Student Body. Elections are held quarterly to fill any positions that have been vacated in the Senate or other divisions. The ASB is divided into executive, judicial, and legislative branches and is run much like the federal government.

If a student happens to belong to a sorority or fraternity he has songfest and Greek games to look forward to, as well as all the other activities that go along with being a Greek.

The Union building is a good place for students to go when they feel like being active. The gameroom has every type of game table imaginable from foosball to pinball. The television room, in a quiet corner of the building, is a good place for the not-so-active people to go to relax.

Although many areas have been neglected, this should offer an idea of just how much there is to do on campus.

Classes

Classes become a daily routine and can become boring if the student is not careful. Eight O'clock classes should be avoided if the student is interested in learning. In most cases, an 8:00 class is just an extra hour of sleep before the day gets going.

Core requirements are, in general, the classes a student least wants to take. Although they can be interesting, he is usually ready to move on to his major and leave the other courses behind.

Some schools use the "bait and switch" method in getting students to sign up for courses. They lure the students to a course with an easy teacher and then change the teacher on the day after registration. Another method is to simply put "staff" instead of specifying the teacher, leading a student to think he will get an easy teacher.

Finding the right teacher is sometimes hard to do. Some students may think one teacher is particularly good, while others don't, so students never really know what they're getting into. The testing methods of teachers could easily take up a whole book in themselves. There are basically three types of tests: 1) short answer, 2) multiple choice and True-False, and 3) discussion. Most teachers will use a combination of these. The problems arise in the grading system and amount of material being covered. Some teachers ask only the most obvious facts, but there is at least one teacher in every department who will ask anything from footnotes to page numbers. These are the ones to look out for.

Invariably after preparing for what the teacher is sure to ask, tests are passed out, and the 75 point question is on the footnote on page 183 and the 15 point question is on the obvious fact. The only thing for a student to do on a test like this is to say a lot without ever committing himself to any hard facts. Some teachers seem to think that how much is said is more important than what is said. This doesn't always work, but it certainly can't hurt.

The size of a class has a lot to do with how much enjoyment is gotten out of it. The smaller the class, the more involvement required, so naturally more interest is evoked. In larger classes, the teacher tends to spend more time lecturing, so less class participation is involved and therefore less interest is aroused from class members.

Both Monday-Wednesday-Friday classes and Tuesday-Thursday classes have their advantages and disadvantages. If a lot of time is needed for class-work, then Tuesday-Thursday classes can be the most beneficial. If the class is mostly lectures, then Monday-Wednesday-Friday classes may be better because they require a shorter attention span.

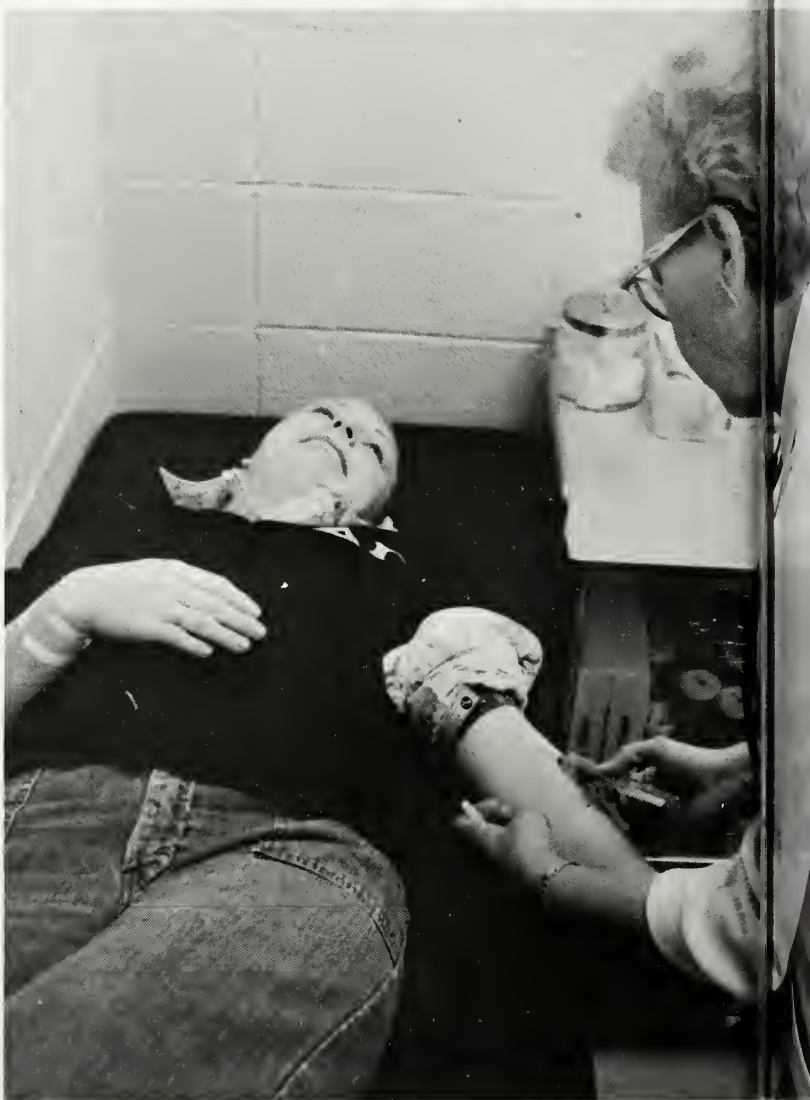

When it comes right down to it, classes depend on the students. If they go into a class expecting to learn and to enjoy it, chances are they will.

DORMS

Dorm life can be summed up in one word—HECTIC! Students who are adventurous enough to live in a dormitory will find that: 1) they get little or no sleep, 2) do little or no studying, and 3) can always find someone to do either of the above with them.

A dorm room is the most unique habitat of the human species. It is a combination bedroom, kitchen, living room, recreation room and storage room stuffed into approximately 15 square feet of tile and plaster. Room checks will find books and papers stacked in corners and dirty clothes hidden under anything and everything.

A dorm bathroom is a sacred place and should never be dominated during "rush hours". Sinks double for washing faces, clothes or even dishes when necessary, and windows may serve as temporary clothes lines. Dorm showers are unique in that spurts of hot water come whenever anyone in the dorm happens to turn on cold water, and cold water dominates if more than one person is showering at the same time.

Dorm students soon learn to study under strange conditions, such as blaring stereos and constant interruption. Friends wander aimlessly in and out of rooms stopping to ask about daily assignments or a new date. Students must also learn to sleep under these conditions if any sleep is to be gotten.

Roommates offer an interesting addition to dorm life at no extra charge. A roommate is a person with whom a room, clothes, food and anything else that happens to be around is shared, and yet is only seen in the morning during the battle over whose alarm is going off. It seems that roommates, or "roomies" as they are sometimes known, have opposite class schedules so that when one can sleep late, the other has to be up at 5:30, but amazingly enough, after a week or two, the one who can sleep usually does so without even noticing the other getting up.

The food is possibly the most intriguing aspect of college life. Students who are used to home cooked, balanced meals arrive on campus to face meals of soybean burgers, day old bread and cokes.

There is no substitute for living in a dormitory, and there is no other life style that it can be compared to. It's a combination of family, friends, work, play and everything else that makes life so interesting.

Dr. Aubrey Lucas

In his second year as president of the university, Dr. Aubrey Lucas made an effort to get to know the students at USM. His winning smile and friendly personality won him instant popularity with all who met him. Dr. Lucas was inaugurated on March 19, 1976 as the sixth president of the university and has since brought a closer union between students and administrators than the university has seen in the past. His genuine interest in student opinions has shown through in daily affairs.

OFFICES

There is a series of steps a person must take in order to become a student at the University of Southern Mississippi. First, he must submit an application to the Office of Admissions. If accepted, he then must proceed to the Housing Office in order to reserve a place to live. The Office of the Registrar aids the student in selecting courses and signing up for them. After accomplishing these steps, the student then must encounter the Business Office in order to pay his fees.

In many cases, students may need help in paying fees. The Office of Student Aid and Scholarships is available to help students in any way possible. The University is concerned with helping students choose the right field. The Counseling Center and the Career Development Center have trained personnel to advise students in making decisions. The Placement Bureau provides job opportunities for students who want to gain experience and make some money while attending school, as well as helping to place graduates in work in their major.

The University Bookstore is a miniature department store, supplying the student population with gifts, greeting cards, school supplies and many other things. The Textbook Service loans or sells books to students for their classes. Most books are loaned to students as long as they are enrolled in a course. Probably the most popular place on campus is the Post Office. No student's day would be complete without checking to see if he or any of his "boxmates" have gotten any mail.

The University Commons supplies on-campus students with three daily meals Monday through Saturday and two meals on Sunday. In addition to the regular meal line, there is a line for students who are watching their weight. Campus brains can usually be found indulged in a book at the Library. Besides study aids, the library also has current newspapers and magazines. The Clinic is the campus emergency room. Students can be found there around the clock, seeking aid for sprained ankles, headaches, or coughs. Campus Security, besides giving parking tickets, protects the campus and students 24 hours a day.

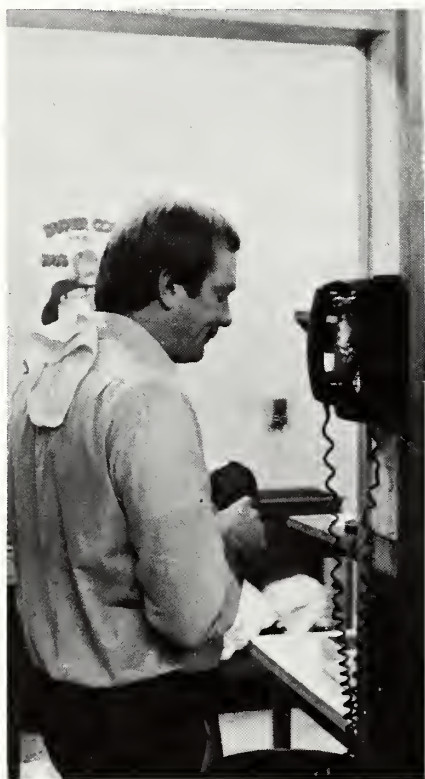

All activities must be cleared with the Office of Student Activities. This includes meetings, selling food or listening to an off-campus speaker. The Photo Center is always available to cover activities with their ace photographers. They also take individual pictures, sell film and develop film at a discount price to students. To announce an activity, the Printing Center can provide posters, hand-bills or letters.

This year was the first time in three years that Southern had played on campus, as all of us have anxiously awaited the completion of the new stadium. The Golden Eagles dropped close decisions to Mississippi State, Florida State, and Louisiana Tech, capturing wins over Memphis State and Texas-Arlington to close out the 1976-77 season with a disappointing 2-9 record.

Ben Garry ran for 1236 yards to break a 24 year seasonal rushing record, for USM, set in 1952 by Hugh Laurin Pepper. Ben lacked only 99 yards to break the all-time career rushing record set by Bucky McElroy.

Stadium Dedication

September 25, 1976 marked the date of the dedication of the M.M. Roberts Stadium, the largest stadium in the state of Mississippi. Governor Cliff Finch as well as other state officials were on hand for the occasion. After the dedication ceremony, fans enjoyed a competitive game between the Eagles and the Ole Miss Rebels.

Ivy Grantham was crowned Homecoming Queen before a crowd of nearly 30,000 people in pregame festivities at the USM-Mississippi State game. Campus organizations decorated the campus with displays commemorating the Eagles first Homecoming in their new stadium. The theme for the weekend was "Home Again: Golden Memories".

HIGH SCHOOL DAY

Once a year high school students from the surrounding area are invited to the USM campus for a day of fun and getting to know Southern. The Spring 1976 high school day theme was Spring Round Up. Students were given western hats and learned about the many facets of the University of Southern Mississippi. To end the day, the group was treated to a dance at the golf course pavillion.

REGISTRATION

Registration, held quarterly, is one of the many necessary evils of University life. Standing in line for hours just to get inside and then finding that the class you've been waiting three quarters to take is closed, filling out computer sheets, paying fees and finally picking up books are just a few of the escapades of Registration.

Department of Aerospace

The Department of Aerospace Studies—Air Force ROTC—completed an excellent 76-77 school year under the direction of Lt. Col. Hugh D. McCracken Jr., the department chairman and detachment commander.

The Air Force ROTC program selects and commissions second lieutenants through a college education program. The program is available to men and women. Any student in good standing with the university may take the general military course as a freshman or sophomore. Selection into the final two years of the program, the Professional Officer Course, is on a competitive basis. Limited quotas established by the Air Force result in a very elite corps of cadets. Scholarships are available on a competitive basis. A major feature of the program is that it is designed to provide realistic leadership experiences for all cadets.

In everyone's life, there is an experience for which they will always be grateful. Editing the 1977 SOUTHERNER has been such an experience for me. It has provided me with a chance to take on responsibility and to learn while doing something I enjoy. It has also given me an outlet for practicing the skills and techniques of yearbook production I have learned over the years.

No editor could produce a book without the help of a good staff. I would like to thank Evelyn Dunn for being an Assistant Editor and a friend I could depend on and Mr. Warren Dunn for having faith in my judgements. Special thanks go to all the folks at Photo Service for putting up with my last minute photo sessions and to Vicki Wilson for being on my side. As important as a good staff are a family and friends who provide support and a listening ear when necessary. I especially want to thank Rusty Slider for being a good shoulder to cry on and for giving me some much needed moral support.

The staff and I have worked hard for the single purpose of presenting the University of Southern Mississippi with an accurate and enjoyable record of the 1976-77 academic year. I hope you will feel we have accomplished our task.
